The Houston Morning Market Company is preparing to launch three new markets in the Greater Houston area by November 19. (Courtesy Houston Morning Market Company) Editor's note: Downtown Evening Market starts Thursday, November 19. This article was previously published at 18:00 on Nov. After grew up in Texas as mentioned at the launch, Hayley Summers said she moved to the Greater Houston area two years ago. Summers, Summers, The Houston Morning Market Company-which runs the Heights Morning Market-said he soon fell in love with the Tomball and Conroe communities. There was so much in Houston, and I couldn't help feeling like it wasn't enough around. Said. I really fell in love with towns and culture, but I also couldn't kick the feeling that there had to be more. It can't just be that you're in the city with tons to do or in a country that has nothing to do. There's got to be a way to bring the city into the country, or at least bring more to the suburbs. This spring, during the COVID-19 outbreak, Summers- which has been running vendor markets for the past seven years- took ownership of heights morning market, a farmers and artisan market held every Sunday in Heights. I've really started praying for God to lead me in the right direction, right up to opening new markets, and he's going to see me, along with the communities and business owners, the blessing that a market like the one I run has to offer, and he'll have the opportunity to bless the community, the vending machine owner and the owner of the place. Summers said. The Houston Morning Market Company is now ready to launch three additional markets across the region by November 19, Summers said. Vendor fields are still available for new markets. The company's first venture into the Conroe Morning Market-suburbs-open Arms Boutique, located at 3501 N. Frazier St., Conroe debuts October 31. Summers is also taking part in an autumn festival of market vendors, live music and children's events on opening day, as well as candy and bakery products. Conroe will host the market with I Whole, a nonprofit dedicated to helping young people diagnosed with DEHB, said Summers, who is going to the October 31 nonprofit with a portion of the income from face painting. Summers said the Conroe market will have space for 20 vendors, food trucks and small businesses and nonprofits to give back to the community each week. Sunday 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays.The Tomball Morning Market 32127 Hwy. 249, will be open at Shiloh's Food Court, located in Pinehurst, launched November 8. Summers, which spans four acres, said initial plans included live music, events, space for 20 shopkeepers and shoppers, and three food trucks in addition to food trucks at Shiloh's Food Court. At Shiloh's, we want to focus on everyone in the family who has something to do here every Sunday. Said. At Shiloh's, we want to expand as much as possible and give the community what they want. Tomball Morning Market will be open from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Sundays. The possibilities are endless. I'd love to see splash houses and water gun fights, and I'd love to see charities or nonprofits come and use the land to entertain our guests, while at the same time benefiting their business. Said. We do We want to enter our Tomball market all day on Saturdays and Sundays. Summers said it will launch a third market-a Downtown Evening Market- November 19, and hot box hemp goods will be located at 803 Quitman St., Houston. The market, which will be held from 18:00 to 10 pm on Thursdays, will include local artists, live music and/or DJs, unique artisan sellers, food and drinks. Summers said he hopes this launch will add an artistic air to the business district. He described the Downtown Evening Market as a quirk of rock n' roll, where punk rock meets hip-hop. We are trying to move away from the mediet thing in our downtown market and include much more culture and diversity. Said. All markets are free to participate. The goal is really just to bring communities together, to bring diversity to these rural communities. Said.
